Building resilient, productive and sustainable dairy systems under climate stress and supply chain uncertainty - Dairy Leaders Summit MENA 2027

The dairy industry in the MENA region is entering a new phase defined by sustainability and the urgent need for system-wide resilience.Increasing climate variability, pressure on water and feed resources, ongoing geopolitical and trade disruptions, and decarbonizationtargets are reshaping how dairy is produced, processed, and delivered across global supply chains, while AI is beginning to transformdecision-making across the value chain.

Consumer demand is also evolving rapidly. Dairy is increasingly positioned as a nutrition-driven functional category. Growing demand for high-protein, probiotic, lactose-free, and immunity-supporting products is accelerating the shift from commodity-based production to value-added nutrition systems.

Under the theme “Building resilient, productive and sustainable dairy systems under climate stress and supply chain uncertainty”, the conference will explore how the industry can strengthen resilience and reduce carbon intensity across the full value chain. Key topics include precision farming and AI-enabled herd management, heat-resilient genetics, water and feed efficiency, decarbonization of production and processing, localized supply chains, cold chain reliability, and digitalization from farm to factory.

The conference as high-level summit will bring together senior dairy leaders across farming, processing, technology, feed and ingredient supply, logistics, and policy to address the sector’s most pressing structural challenges.

Join us in Dubai to connect with global dairy leaders shaping the next generation of resilient, low-carbon, and AI-enabled dairy systems.
